

Graduate Program of Study Suggestions: General Music Track

What follows is a possible design structure for your program of study. These are options to generate a three-year model for completion, however, candidates have up to 7 years to complete the program. The model below assumes that you are starting in the summer, however, it is possible to start the program during the fall and spring as well. If you choose to begin in the fall or spring semester, you should take 562 Introduction to Graduate Study in your first semester of study.

Candidates may complete up to but not exceeding 12 credits during a summer session. This is typical for those wishing to do only summer sessions and to complete in three summers.

Candidates can spread their work out across the year, which allows them to take fewer credits in each summer session. Taking 10 credits in a summer provides a much easier pace and will be used as the model below. This model assumes that the candidate is taking coursework throughout the academic year online. For a complete list of courses, please refer to the document titled, MMEd Program Planning and Tracking Sheet.

NOTE: For General Music Track Candidates, residency summers must be taken consecutively as courses alternate by summer.
